Two Best friends Benny and Riya lived in a tiny, sunny town in India. They had known each other since they were little. They always supported each other and helped each other. They were like family.

Although they enjoyed playing and having fun, they frequently neglected to save energy at home. Their heaters ran nonstop, their lights were left on for much too long, and the TV continued to run even when nobody was home.

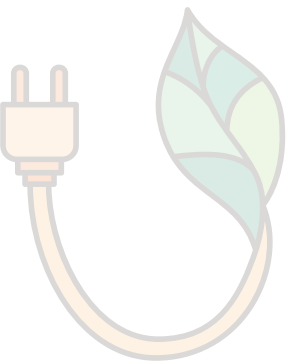

They were having fun at the park one bright, sunny afternoon when all of a sudden, the sky became gloomy. A shooting star flashed across the sky as they turned to look up and softly landed close to them.

A superman appeared from the dazzling starlight. He said that he is "Voltazio", had just arrived from the Planet of Power in the Green Galaxy.

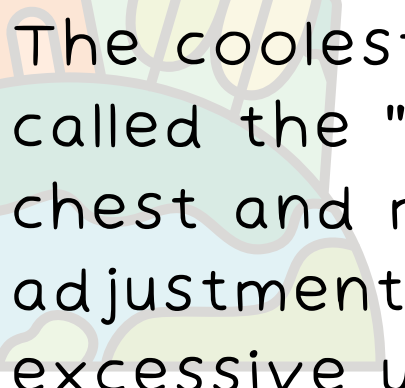

He said he is the figurehead of power and light. He can fly faster than a jet and fire lightning bolts from his fingertips. He defends the planet from darkness and evil with his electric courage and bright smile. When we asked him his purpose of visit to Earth, He said, His mission was to teach the inhabitants of Earth how to use energy wisely.

Voltazio was clad in a bright green cape. The "Thermostat," a tiny device, was affixed to his chest. "Think of the thermostat as the boss of heaters and air conditioners," he explained. It tells the appliance when to work and when to take a break. So, they don't get too tired, and we don't waste energy!"

Then Voltazio acted immediately, beginning with Benny and Riya's homes. His initial trick was to turn off all the lights during the day to allow sunlight enter. He explained to Benny and Riya how using natural light rather than lights not only saves energy but also improves the appearance of everything.

The coolest trick then followed. He called the "Thermostat" out of his chest and made the ideal adjustment. Without the need for excessive usage of the heaters or air conditioners, Riya's home was comfortable all year round. Family members of Riya felt more at ease and used less energy.

Days sped by. Benny and Riya learned numerous clever techniques from Voltazio to save water, recycling things, and grow plants. After learning from Voltazio, they felt proud. "We're saving the world just like super heroes," Benny laughed.

Voltazio soon left for a different planet, but Benny, Riya, and their mission continued. By sharing the teachings of Voltazio to others, they evolved into the town's very own superheroes. And they felt a little bit more like Voltazio every time they switched out a light or changed the thermostat.

This is a tale of two friends, a superhero and a mission to save energy. Like Voltazio, Benny and Riya demonstrated to us that energy conservation is not just smart and important but also fun. Because to Save Energy is to Save the World!
